

学術講演会

The Role of Translation in Global Business

日時 2019年5月9日(木) 午後16:20~17:50

会場 関西大学 千里山キャンパス
岩崎記念館 4階 F401教室

講師 Dr. Frank Austermuehl
(アストン大学教授)

Prof. Frank Austermuehl, Aston University

Frank Austermuehl is Professor of Modern Languages with a Chair in Translation Studies at Aston University in Birmingham (UK) where he also serves as Deputy Dean and Associate Dean International for the School of Languages and Social Sciences. Prior to coming to Birmingham, Frank was the director of the Translation Studies program at the University of Auckland in New Zealand.

Frank's main research interests include the link between translation and technology as well as multilingual political discourse analysis. He has an MA in Translation Studies (with German, English, and Spanish) and a Ph.D. in Applied Linguistics and Translation Studies from the University of Heidelberg, Germany, and has taught at the Universities of Heidelberg and Mainz in Germany. He is also a former Fulbright fellow at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., and the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, VA.

Frank's publications include the monographs The Evolving Curriculum in Interpreter and Translator Education (Benjamins, 2019, with D. Sawyer and V. Enriquez Raido), The Great American Scaffold -- Intertextuality and Identity in American Presidential Discourse (Benjamins 2014), Electronic Tools for Translators (St. Jerome 2001), Übersetzen im Informationszeitalter (WVT 2001), Humanities Education and the Challenge of e-Learning (2000, with D. Apollon), and Learning Theories and Practice in Translation Studies (2008, with J. Kornelius), as well as numerous articles and book chapters in the field of translation studies as well as discourse studies.

Frank is editor of the online journal T21N.com, track editor for Translation Spaces, and serves as a reviewer for the Hong Kong Research Council, the Spanish Ministry of Economy and Competitiveness as well as for a number of journals, including Perspectives, The Translator and Interpreter Trainer, Language and Power, and East European Politics and Cultures.

お問合せ

関西大学外国語学部

<http://www.kansai-u.ac.jp/fl/>